Nine hundred and ninety-nine numbers ending with 82, being the two last figures of the number drawing the second capital prize of $20,000. The subscribers having supervised the Single Number Drawing, Class "C," Louisiana State Lottery, hereby certify that the above are the numbers which were this day drawn from the 100,000 placed in the wheel, with the prizes corresponding to them. Witness our hands at New Orleans, La., this Tuesday, February 7, 1893. G. T. BEAUREGARD, J. A. EARLY, W. L. CABELL, Commissioners.

BACTERIA AND LIGHT. The study of bacteria, those microscopic organisms which have assumed so much importance in the public mind since some of them have been shown to be the active cause of various diseases, is progressing at a wonderful rate. It may be possible to write the biography of certain bacteria, and the story of their individual development, says the Youth's Companion, would possess much interest. The action of light upon these simple organisms is, in certain cases, wonderful. It has been ascertained, for instance, that the bacterium photometricum possesses the power, or property, of discriminating between lights of different intensities. These minute organisms show an optical rotation in a definite direction, and when the intensity of the light shining upon them is suddenly diminished, they dart backward with an opposite rotation. This is called by Engelmann a "terror motion," as if the organisms feared darkness. One result of this curious property is that such bacteria may be enclosed in an illuminated circle as in a trap, out of which escape is impossible to them, for the moment they approach the dark rim of the luminous circle the "terror motion" sends them shooting back into the light. PASSING FANCIES. The Florida coast has a floating hotel, which moves from place to place wherever the best fishing happens to be. Mrs. Johnson's home for cats at Buena Vista, Cal., is a splendid country mansion, fit for a millionaire's residence, to which 8,000 acres of grounds are attached. Mrs. Eugene Clarke gave a dog party the other day, at her residence in New York, in honor of the birthday of her dog, and twenty canines that attended were treated to a repast of sliced chicken, game pie and ice cream. Six jeweled fillets became the rage among rich women New York jewelers have produced many fabulously expensive things of this sort. Regular coronets are not uncommon, and one jeweler had made to order for a New York woman a reproduction of one of Queen Victoria's crowns, an elaborate affair of gold enriched with handsome work and jewels. THE WOMEN OF EGYPT. Facts That Prove They Were Not Far Behind Their Modern Sisters. The women of to-day should be deeply learned in Egyptology, as there is much in recent developments to show that woman was very highly regarded in the ancient times. We find them acting as regents during the minority of their sons. They transacted business and bequeathed their property. Decals of gifts have been found by a mother to her daughter, and another in which a mother transfers her property to her daughter on certain conditions. Then there is the famous Queen Hatshep, a most brilliant woman and a remarkable builder. The oldest known fragment of Homer pillowed the head of a young woman who was doubtless buried with her favorite poet as a companion of her own time was buried with him. There is every indication that the higher education of woman was duly considered and if no evidences of coeducation exist it is doubtless because those ancient people were much too wise to attempt it. That women possessed tact and a delightful manner of ordering their homes is inferred from the fact that all the portraits and statues of Egyptian men represent them with a particularly happy and good-natured expression. THE CHINESE WALL. It was a Wonderful Engineering Feat and a Stupendous Work. The scenery from the great wall is very fine. The wall is here a dividing line between the high, rugged hills of China, which tower above us on the one hand, and the great sandy plains of Mongolia on the other, with dim mountain summits beyond in the far distance. Over these barren, rocky spurs and acclivities, ascending to their very summits, winding about in irregular curves and zigzags, its serried battlements clear-cut against the sky on the topmost ridges, descending into dark gullies to appear again rising on the other side, the endless line of massive stone and brick runs on and on until lost to sight behind the farthest range. And so, says the Century, it goes for miles and miles, eastward to the Pechili gulf, and westward, mostly in two great, rambling lines, along the border of the Gobi desert and Kansu, until it ends among the foothills of the Nan Shan range. However we may regard it, whether as a grand conception for the defense of an empire, as an engineering feat, or merely as a result of the persistent application of human labor, it is a stupendous work. No achievement of the present time compares with it in magnitude. But it has outlived its usefulness. The powerful Tartar and Mongol hordes, whose sudden raids and invasions it was built to resist, are no more to be feared. The great Genghis and Kublai could not lead their people to glory conquest now as they did centuries ago. The Chinese civilization has endured, while the once conquering Mongols, the people who in their brightest days established an empire from the Black sea to the China coast, and a court at Peking of such luxury and splendor as Marco Polo described, are now doomed to pass away, leaving nothing behind them but the traditions, and records, and ruins of a brilliant past. The wall stands as a sharp line
